They have an affinity for high priced stores and the finer things, thanks to their mother, Ms. Janelle Jenkins, hood rich entrepreneur. As recent graduates from Ms. Seoul's School of Business, the girls acquired the skills necessary to proofread, type, and find Mr. Right. After a meeting in the "bored room" a.k.a. the living room, the three decide Ms. Seoul's 90-day job placement guarantee is more than enough time for them to meet wealthy men. Meanwhile, their little sister Chloe is in dire need of a topic for her college entrance essay. After spying on her sisters as they plot and scheme, she suddenly comes up with the perfect theme. From Bankhead to Buckhead, the ghetto divas have a plan and won't stop at nothing until they get a rich man by being a lady first. This book is a literary comedy, guaranteed to make you laugh as the stereotypical women hustle their way to the top, but don't get it twisted, because when they start to believe they do achieve. If you enjoy southern hospitality with a hint of urban twist, from Ms. Janelle to Chloe, this is a book you definitely don't want to miss.
